How coach handles losses. Practices after losses were dramatically different from practices after wins to a point where everyone dreaded them. We were afraid to lose and played out of fear and it showed because of all the close games we lost. No one felt safe in the sense that we had no one to talk to and no one in our corner to help us handle situations mentally. We felt alone constantly. We would have not made it through this season without each other, there were some really bad days. Everyone on this team had to fight themselves to not walk out of practice or workouts on given days. It's kind of hard to explain all of this, you had to be there, you had to struggle through it. No one will ever understand how hard this year was except for the players that went through it together.

Rate Marlene Stollings's ability to communicate effectively with you

We were not allowed to ask questions in practice. Multiple times I would ask a question and told to "figure it out" or sent to the side to run sprints for not understanding. Eventually everyone gave up on asking questions because we would get punished for it, then we would mess something up because we did not understand and still get punished. It was a lose lose situation.

She did bring things out of it, but she did it the wrong way. We adapted and changed through getting yelled at and being confused what she wanted. If she would have talked to us like human beings we probably would have gotten it quicker and avoided being screamed at all together.

this was a big problem for me. This was probably the biggest deficit we had this year. I could go on for days about why this is so important and how we had ZERO help mentally. Half of us were losing our minds and did not know how to cope with all of it.

What are Marlene Stollings's greatest strengths and areas for improvement?

she knows basketball. her X's and O's are some of the best I've ever seen, but there is more to coaching than that. I really question how she is going to rebuild this program because she is not going about it in the right ways as you can see with how many players and coaches would rather be at a freaking d2 or juco than here. That's not a lack of talent or lack of playing, that's having enough respect for themselves that they recognize a toxic environment when they see one.

Describe the Women's Basketball team to a recruit.

This team is hardworking and loving. Everyone gets a long so well and although there may be disagreements, it settles quick like it never happened and that's what makes us all so close as players. The coaches know what they are doing and how to win but the way they go about situations and their delivery aren't the best. We have some of the most hardworking managers.

Rate the quality of your coaching staff

To make this team great, the coaching staff needs to adjust to this generation. This generation wants a relationship of trust and authenticity with their coaches. This generation wants to be recognized and appreciated for their good works, not just rebuked for their mistakes. This generation works harder with encouragement. It's different, but that's the way our age group is working right now.

Collin is a great equipment manager. We have more than enough gear. The problem is we are women's basketball players and we are twice the size of any other female athletes and our gear is often times too short. Also, the shoes have caused lots of foot pain for several players and with the amount of time we spend playing they could be more comfortable and longer lasting.

What are Nikita Lowry Dawkins's greatest strengths and areas for improvement?

Coach Nik knows what makes players tick and she knows her basketball. There are just some communication issues sometimes, but when she explains then everything is all good.

I can't really comment on Coach Erin's strengths and weaknesses because she wasn't allowed to coach us. But from all my interactions, she knows her stuff and cares about the players.

Is there anything else that you would like to share with your administrator that could improve your student-athlete experience?

I've lost 31 people "unnaturally" (graduation or retirement) since I've been here. My experience has not been fun or good in a lot of ways and sometimes I regret coming to Texas Tech.

Is there anyone other than your coaches (e.g., director of ops, athletic trainer, academic advisor, director of player development, etc.) that has affected your experience? If so, who and in what way(s)?

Dr. Cooper, who is no longer here, really helped me out and was a rock for me throughout all the trials.
