JUDGE TO RULE ON “DAMN LAWYERS”

This may be the last chance for Rich and Caroline Allison to prove they were ripped off by the Houston attorneys they call the “DAMN LAWYERS.”

Judge Cory Sepolio has denied our request to put a camera in the courtroom for the Friday morning hearing. The judge has granted one more chance for the siblings to prove they were cheated out of millions of dollars of inheritance when their father died.

It is a Dolcefino Media investigation that’s gone viral on social media.

“I want it to be common knowledge that attorneys prey on families, and they love inheritances because dead people can’t defend themselves,” Caroline Allison said.

“This investigation has exposed cronyism, possible self-dealing, attorneys accused of using fake reviews. The Allisons want all court watchers complaining about justice in Harris County to come watch,” said Wayne Dolcefino, President of Dolcefino Media.

The hearing will take place at the Harris County Courthouse in the 269th Civil District Court on the 13th floor.

Dolcefino Media is run by award-winning investigative journalist Wayne Dolcefino and investigates misconduct by lawyers and governments across Texas.
